

ENTITY #4

Information

Deathmoths are giant moths that inhabit the Backrooms. While the male Deathmoths are mostly harmless and possibly even tamable, the female moths are several times larger, can spit acid, and are entirely hostile. Deathmoths are attracted to light, so if you hear the fluttering of wings nearby, make sure to put any light source out. Smaller Deathmoths inhabit Level 2, Level 3, and Level 5, but the larger and more dangerous ones only appear in Level 5, where their hive is centralized and where the king and queen are. They have completely taken over the level and are the only things there besides the mysterious beast.

Behaviors

Deathmoths vary in hostility and biology depending on the level they are found in. The Hive, considered the source of the Deathmoths, is where they are the deadliest and most aggressive. However, individual Deathmoths of every Level vary in danger.

The Deathmoths are giant moths, although they do not share many similarities with "Normal" moths. Most of their lifespan, birth, and death, are completely unknown.

Avoid contact and do not act aggressive.

Do not attempt to aggravate the moths or disturb the hives.

References

It is unknown when the Deathmoth Entity was found, but it seems that the group known as The Lost, called these Entities "The Flies of Terror".
